For pharmaceutical and biotechnology companies lacking large, in-house clinical resources the complex task of selecting and managing comparator drugs can be overwhelming. With our TrialAssist service, Caligor handles the countless details associated with comparator drugs, so you can stay focused on the success of your clinical trial.

TrialAssist provides a complete solution for your comparator program—from sourcing and procurement to local language labeling, warehousing, and distribution—with a trusted, single point of contact. Caligor's TrialAssist service can help keep your clinical trial on schedule and on budget, while reducing your staffing requirements.

Global Access Programs

Bridging the gap for unmet patient needs

Providing patients with access to pharmaceuticals not available for use in their countries can save lives. Caligor bridges the gap between these patients and pharmaceutical companies with appropriate medications through our innovative Global Access Programs (GAP).

GAP is Caligor's term for programs also referred to as "named patient," "expanded access," or "compassionate use" programs. GAP is not a clinical trial, but a targeted program specifically intended for patients who have exhausted their treatment options and for whom appropriate therapies exist outside normal commercial channels. A GAP can be established for an individual patient or for a cohort of patients.

Caligor partners with pharmaceutical and biotechnology companies around the world to provide ethical, compliant access to medicines that are still in clinical development, approved in countries other than the patient's country, discontinued or "orphaned," or in short supply in the patient's country.

For pharmaceutical and biotechnology companies, GAP provides a solution for effectively meeting patient demand in markets around the world, throughout the product lifecycle.
